

Biology Bricks Keywords

What This is About

Please use this document to help further your knowledge, by printing out the keywords associated with the relevant page.

This document is set up for you to cut out the keywords (and laminate them if you think it will help), to be used as a quick guide reference for the subject matter that is included.

Warning

Please note: the keywords included in this document are those that link with the page subject matter. They may relate to other pages as well, but they are meant for the page that the link is provided from. Use them as a resource as you so wish.

Printing

Please feel free not to print this page of the document, it is merely a reference and information page.

Animal

We all know what an animal is, and also that they fight among others. This is called competition.

Competition

Animals compete for different reasons – to fight for the alpha spot in the tribe, to consume other smaller animals, for survival, and more.

Prey

Prey is an animal that is predated upon, and are lower in the food chain or web than other animals.

Predator

A predator is an animal that has the ability to predate on prey. They are often smaller animals that are in the food chain or web.

Alpha

The alpha is the top denomination given to the leader of a group of animals of the same species.

Superiority

Superiority occurs when an animal becomes better than another animal. It happens with an apex predator, who have no natural predators.

Fighting

Fighting is one form of animal competition, and is the most common reason for it to happen.

Foraging

Foraging happens because animals need food, and they find it by going out of their comfort zones and into other territories.

Territory

A territory is usually the area that is controlled by animals from one group, tribe or pack. There are often competitions between species for territory.

Interspecific

Interspecific competition happens in order to stay alive. An animal might impeach the territory of another animal to take some land just to survive.

